Peter Duncan, BA, MSc, PhD

Researcher and Writer in public health

PETER DUNCAN, BA, MSc, PhD is a freelance researcher and writer in the field of public health. Until 2014 he was Programme Director of the MSc Health Promotion/ MSc Health and Society Programmes at King’s College London.

He has long-standing research interests in health promotion theory and practice, health policy, and the history and ethics of public health. His publications include Critical Perspectives on Health (Palgrave Macmillan, 2007), which was short listed for the 2007 MJA Open Book Award; and Values, Ethics and Health Care (SAGE, 2010). He is currently working on a book about policy and practice difficulties in the conception and implementation of health promotion.